

National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS)
Global Health Innovation Policy Program (GHIPP)
Regional Crisis Management & Leadership Course
1st Crisis Simulation workshop
January 31, 2019

★ Goal and the content of Crisis Simulation workshop

- It is an active learning exercise, where participants will take part in a simulation of a regional crisis that may affect multiple nations in various ways. Participants play as teams for respective country roles, including Japan, China, the US and others.
- Each team representing a country will decide on various policies and responses, including how to deal with domestic constituents and international community based on their own national priorities and how to meet the ends by negotiating with other nations in bilateral and/or multilateral settings.
- The goal of the exercise is to give participants an appreciation for the complex issues of regional crisis in understanding how each nation would behave based on their national priorities, identifying obstacles and challenges through making of domestic emergency measures, and practicing leadership to come up with best agreed solutions.
- Participants are from Sri Lanka, United States, China, Nepal, Taiwan, Poland, India, Mongolia, Japan, and Australia.

★ Testimonial

The real time evolution of ideas as a result of interactions between different individuals and interests was fascinating.

Everyone had chance to speak and was willing to contribute to discussion.

Very exciting to see different interest and perspectives and trying to reach mutually acceptable outcome.

Scenario was well drafted, timing of adding new information, intelligence people.

I was able to meet and discuss with people that I would not have met in my usual work.

I enjoyed working with team members having different backgrounds to establish the team's policies and strategies so that we could be in a better position for successful negotiations with other teams (countries)

It gave me a fresh perspective on how actors relate to each other in East Asia, particularly on security issues. I feel like it was useful to my understanding of news around North Korea.

The program included not only BCP inside the organization also a negation between conflicting parties.

I very much enjoyed diverse expertise of the participants, and the intense dynamic while clock ticking.

I understood that it would be a key to manage a conflict of interests during crisis.

Previously I was thinking that in disaster everybody shares one goal but in reality not all the parties can share common goal even during a disaster.

★ Survey result

Please rate the level of satisfaction for the workshop

Would you like to participate again?

How effective were the instructors in articulating the subject matter?

Supported by Health and Global Policy Institute (HGPI) and Japan Institute for Social Innovation and Entrepreneurship (JSIE)